Ryan Adamczyk is a Licensed Professional Counselor (9247) through the North Carolina Board of Licensed Professional Counselors. Ryan earned his Masters in Counseling Psychology from the Adler School of Professional Psychology at Chicago, Illinois in 2010. Ryan earned his second Masters in Depth Psychology with an emphasis in Jungian and Archetypal Studies at Pacifica Graduate Institute at Santa Barbara, California in 2012 and has earned his Ph.D. in the same area at the same university on 06/07/2018.

Ryan's experiences working in a variety of settings such as office, home, and community have provided him with a knowledge base to provide individual and family therapy for children and adults including support for veterans and their families as well as people with various disabilities. Ryan specializes in helping children and adults cope with their anger, depression, anxiety, and relationship problems. He also provides clinical assessments for individuals seeking mental health services. Ryan has a genuine concern for the quality of human life and the happiness of others. Ryan believes that building a whole person involves both spiritual and clinical dimensions of life and only when both are addressed will we achieve wholeness.
